EXAMINETICS STRENGTHENS SAFETY CONSULTING SERVICES WITH TWO ADDITIONAL ACQUISITIONS

Transactions mark the fourth and fifth acquisition by the company to enhance safety consulting and safety compliance programs

OVERLAND PARK, KS, July 20, 2026 - Examinetics, a portfolio company of Coalesce Capital and the nation's leading provider of occupational health, safety and compliance solutions, has announced its acquisitions of Progressive Safety, an onsite safety provider, and Jurgiel & Associates, an industrial hygiene and safety consulting provider.

Examinetics delivers occupational health and EH&S services across the full employee health lifecycle to more than 3,000 clients. Services range from pre-employment screening and safety consulting to annual compliance medical testing and injury management. Progressive Safety offers nationwide site safety services, providing credentialed safety specialists on a temporary or permanent basis. This acquisition broadens the Examinetics portfolio to include time-sensitive rapid deployment of safety personnel, including specialized expertise in data center construction.

Jurgiel & Associates is an occupational safety and environmental health consultancy with a wide range of services. This addition expands the Examinetics Safety Division's industrial hygiene expertise, broadens its geographic reach, and increases the divisional headcount to over 50 technicians nationally.

"Adding these two companies to Examinetics strengthens our EHS services and accelerates our mission," said Gary Gluzberg, CEO, Examinetics. "Our customers are at the heart of this decision. These acquisitions allow us to offer them more of the solutions and expertise they have been asking for. With the team at Progressive Safety, we can now better help companies protect their investments by reducing risks related to infrastructure projects. And the Jurgiel team helps us expand our footprint to make our services more convenient for our customers."

This is the fourth and fifth acquisition of a safety consulting company by Examinetics in the past 18 months. The expanded safety consulting division now includes a comprehensive portfolio of consulting, audits, training, industrial hygiene, and safety staffing. Examinetics can now support businesses of all types with mission critical safety resources in complex environments. The services brought together create a unique offering capable of guiding companies through all stages of occupational safety, from pre-construction to job-site monitoring to ongoing safety management.

Progressive Safety President, TJ Slyter, adds "Bringing our teams together unlocks new opportunities for innovation and collaboration. Adding our expertise in large-scale infrastructure jobs to Examinetics' existing safety services means we'll help more companies ensure compliance, reduce risks, and maintain safe job sites."

Jurgiel & Associates Principals, John and Rob Jurgiel, add “Our father, John A. Jurgiel, started this business in 1978 with a passion for safety and helping companies take care of their employees. We are excited for the next chapter in our story. Combining our team with Examinetics will greatly enhance our ability to serve our existing clients and expand the services we can provide them.”
